Foreword

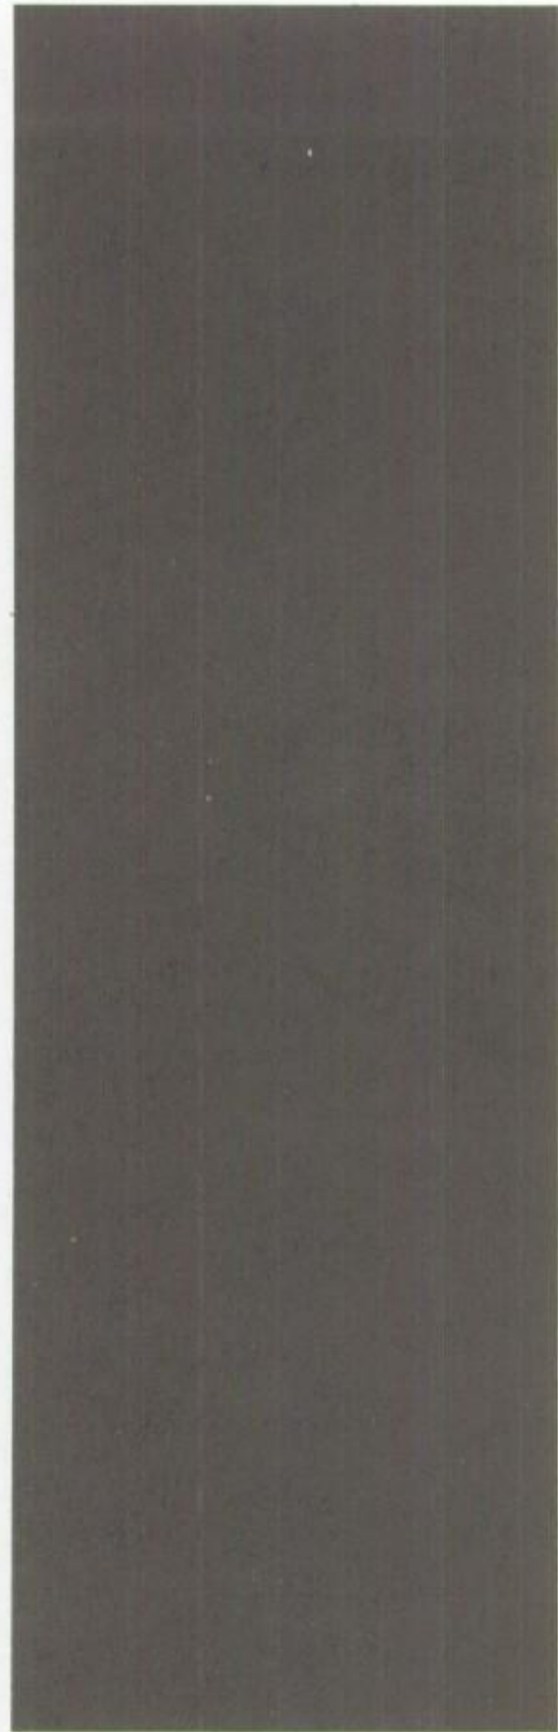

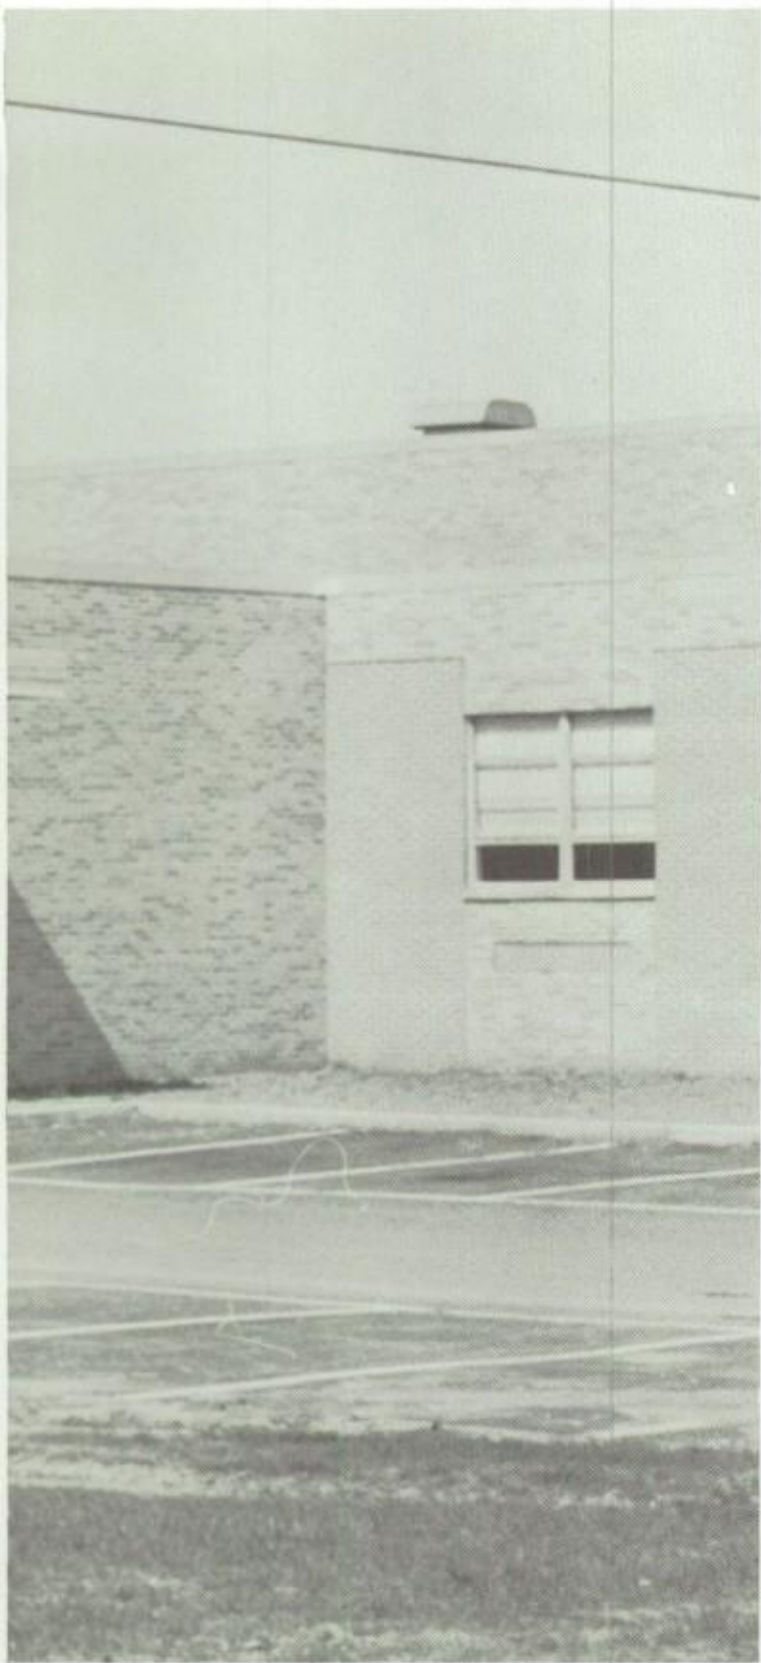

In a world of make believe when many would like to see knowledge and technology divorced from Divine purpose, the present generation finds itself confronted with the necessity of perfecting ideals. Catholic Education has provided the encouragement and means to attain these goals. This generation will find its place, act well its part, and will set the pace for improving ideals.

MOST REVEREND WILLIAM G. CONNARE
Bishop of Greensburg

The deeds of men are recorded in the annals of civilization marking the spiritual and material growth of mankind.

One such deed is the establishment of our high school. It is a monumental work which demanded unswerving constancy, unyielding patience, and very many sacrifices.

We dedicate this Galaxy of '65 to the Most Reverend William G. Connare, Bishop of Greensburg, who as shepherd of his flock has promoted the growth of Catholic education with initiative and determination. His efforts have made it possible for multitudes of boys and girls to acquire and put into practice knowledge tempered by Catholic principles.

Principal's Message

The past generation has witnessed more changes during its lifetime than any previous generation of men of history. Our own generation is experiencing these same changes in every field. In our lifetime we hope to see a man land on the moon.

Even the Church is demonstrating its ability to change itself in order to be more effective in our modern world: a world which demands the very best from each of us. The demand for intelligent, well educated people is increasing every day. It is our hope, here at Geibel, to prepare students to take their place in this demanding world. Through study and discipline we hope to mold students so that they may one day make the lives of others richer and more productive. In so doing, they will fulfill their great Christian vocation which essentially consists of charity for all.

Administration

In our modern twentieth century, an epoch consecrated primarily to the sophisticated cynic and to those who would curse the darkness, relatively few hearts beat with a dedicated sincerity to the less appreciated task of lighting a candle.

Looked upon as saints or fools, they surprise many by refusing to spend time in status-seeking adventures.

Theirs is a noble purpose—the education of exemplary Christians, and the nurturing of noble Catholics. Too little recognition is given to an administration so interested in each student, so dedicated to instill spiritual and intellectual principles of Catholic education.

Faculty

Traditionally teachers place emphasis upon practical education—nonetheless they are primary influences in the student's total preparation for life. They seek to shape souls in the image of Christ so that all may serve Him better. The flame of devotion never falters. For each student the faculty holds a unique meaning—an individual image. Friend, leader, adviser—all these and more is the faculty. They are dignity, spirit, inspiration, and stimulation. Grateful are we.

CLASSES

Religion

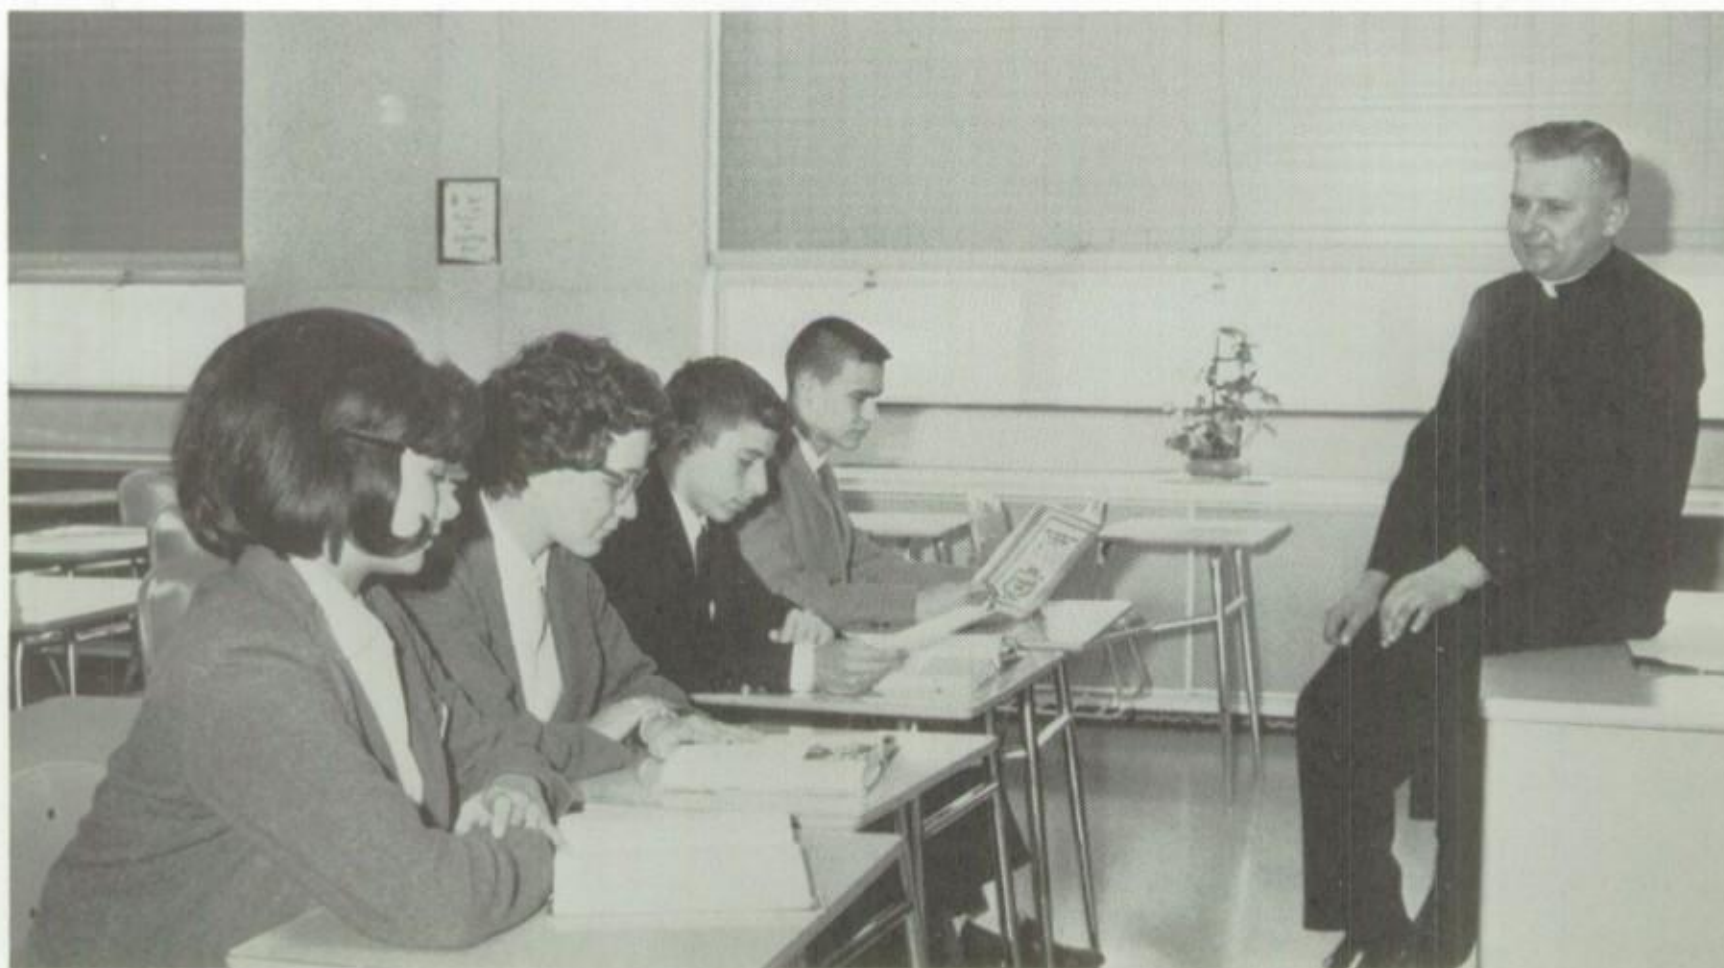

Always searching for truth.

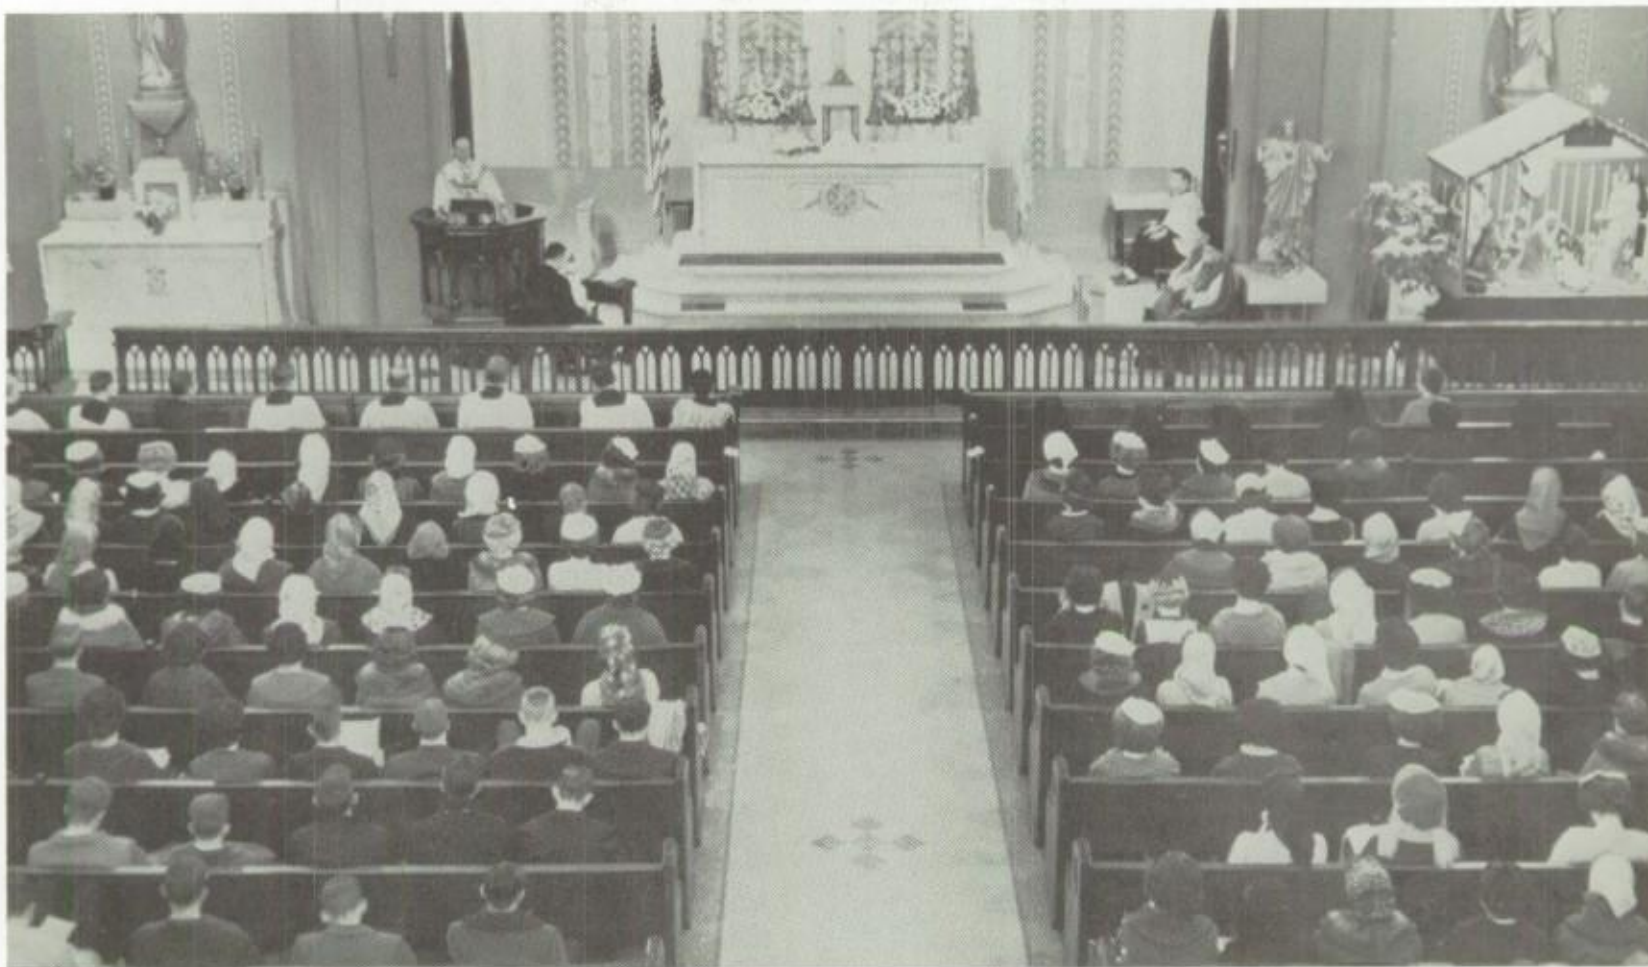

In Religion classes the students attained knowledge of our unique spiritual body, the Church. Here we found an unfailing guide for our salvation.

The fundamental truths of our faith, the life of Christ, the life of our Blessed Mother and the saints, our Christian duties — all are studied and discussed.

Each class begins with a prayer—"Direct we beseech thee, O Lord . . ."

Rev. J. Nieste looks on as Christine Caringola, Mary Ann Belko, James Gambone, Richard Herman, prepare for a discussion.

On the first Friday of each month, the student body participates in the celebration of Holy Mass.

Foundation of Truth

During the retreat, the quiet atmosphere and special conferences brought the students closer to their goal—God. On First Friday the student body attended Mass which stressed their membership in the Mystical Body of Christ. We realize that life and religion become one through Mass, prayer, and the sacraments.

Alice Novak, Eugene Galik, Paulette McGuinness and Robert Shandorf discuss naturalism with Rev. V. Rocco.

Guidance

State the problem and it becomes your own. During guidance classes students express their thoughts freely and discuss them with their fellow classmates.

Through these brainstorming sessions troublesome problems are solved and plans evolved.

Individual assistance was easily available. College requirements, financial cost, and general preparation were discussed. Work opportunities were presented. Aptitude tests helped to pin point the most excellent quality in each student; personality tests made each aware of need for improvement.

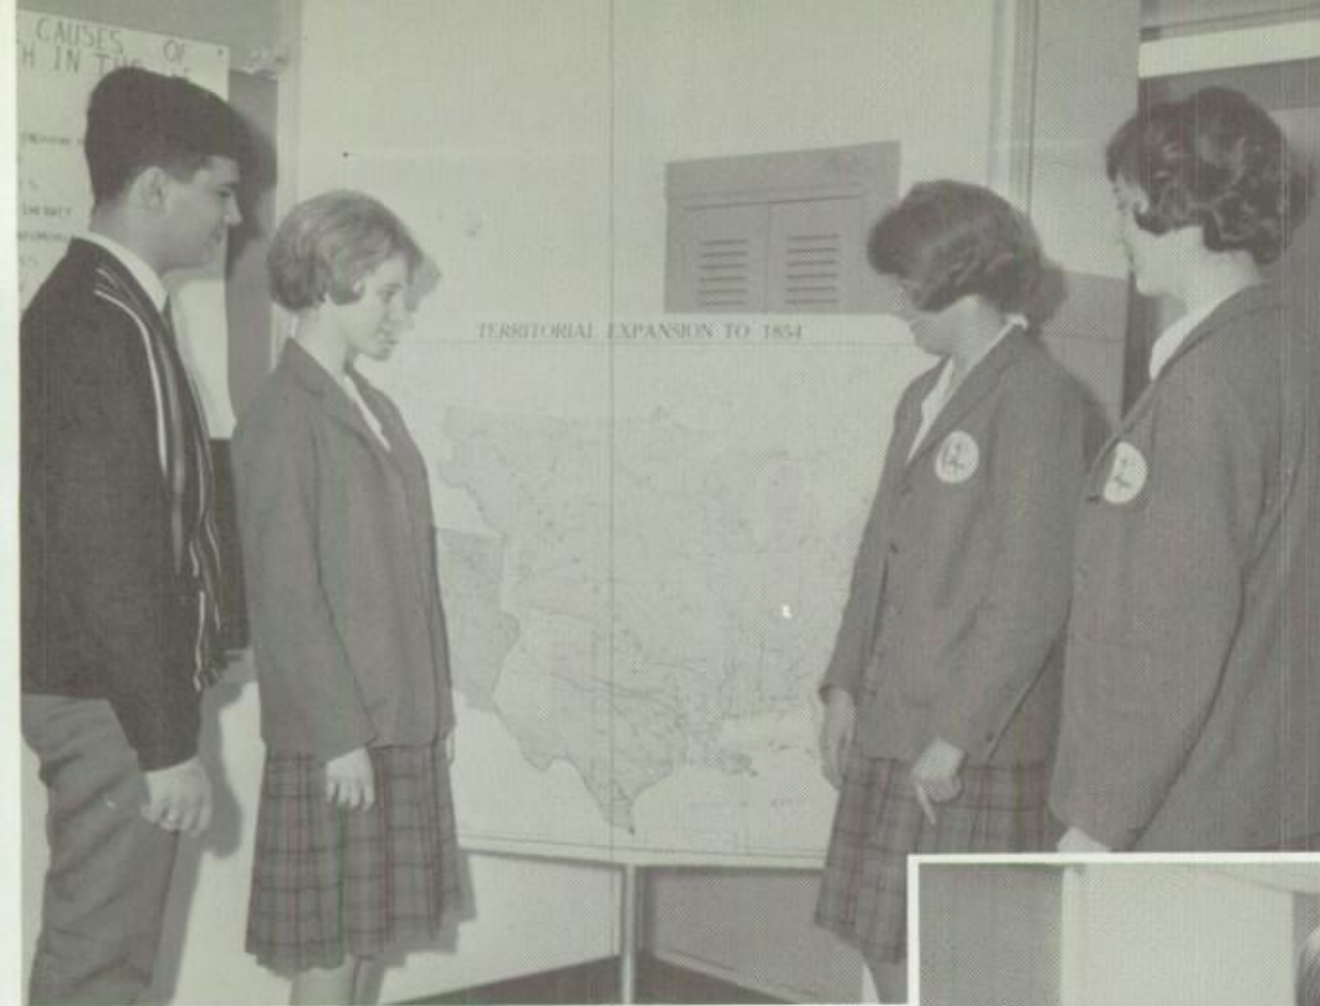

Kathy Bereiter discusses college plans with Sister M. Clare.

John Kapolka, Karen Kelly, Susan Brady, and Robert Staines seek guidance in the most casual places.

Social Studies

. . . Heritage of Freedom

James Cartisano, Cathy Hrezo, Becky Kaczmark, and Dolores Zipnock take a quick look before the test.

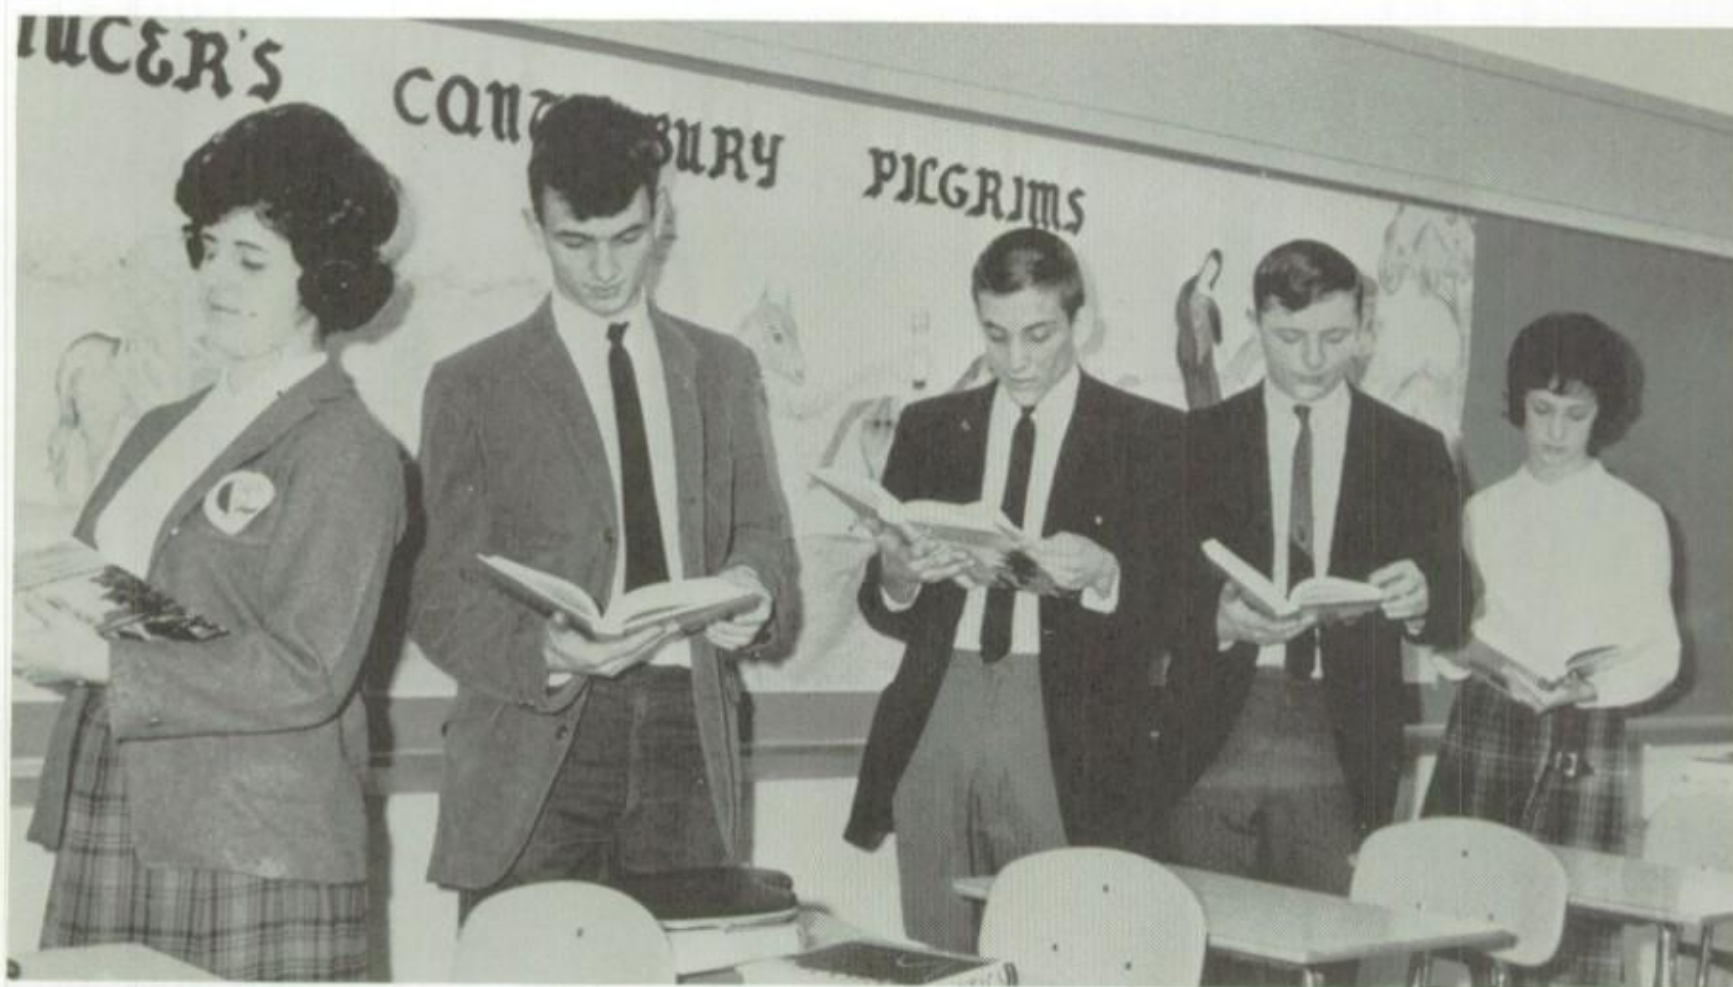

Time marches on through social studies. Courses are designed to develop greater appreciation for the institutions and customs of our own country as well as those of other nations.

Margaret Lizza, James Lewandowski, Christine Harper and Richard Relich locate strategic news making territories.

Janet Mongelluzzo, Ken Keffer, Richard Widmer, Russell Province and Jackie Ash enjoy Chaucer's Canterbury Tales.

William Nist and Elaine Omatick are amused with a short story while Edward Zgorecki looks on with a contented approval.

English

The world of literature is one of magic. It transports us to the America of yesteryears or to the shores of "Merry England." Its doors are easily opened. There we develop a deep appreciation of our national heritage—our native tongue.

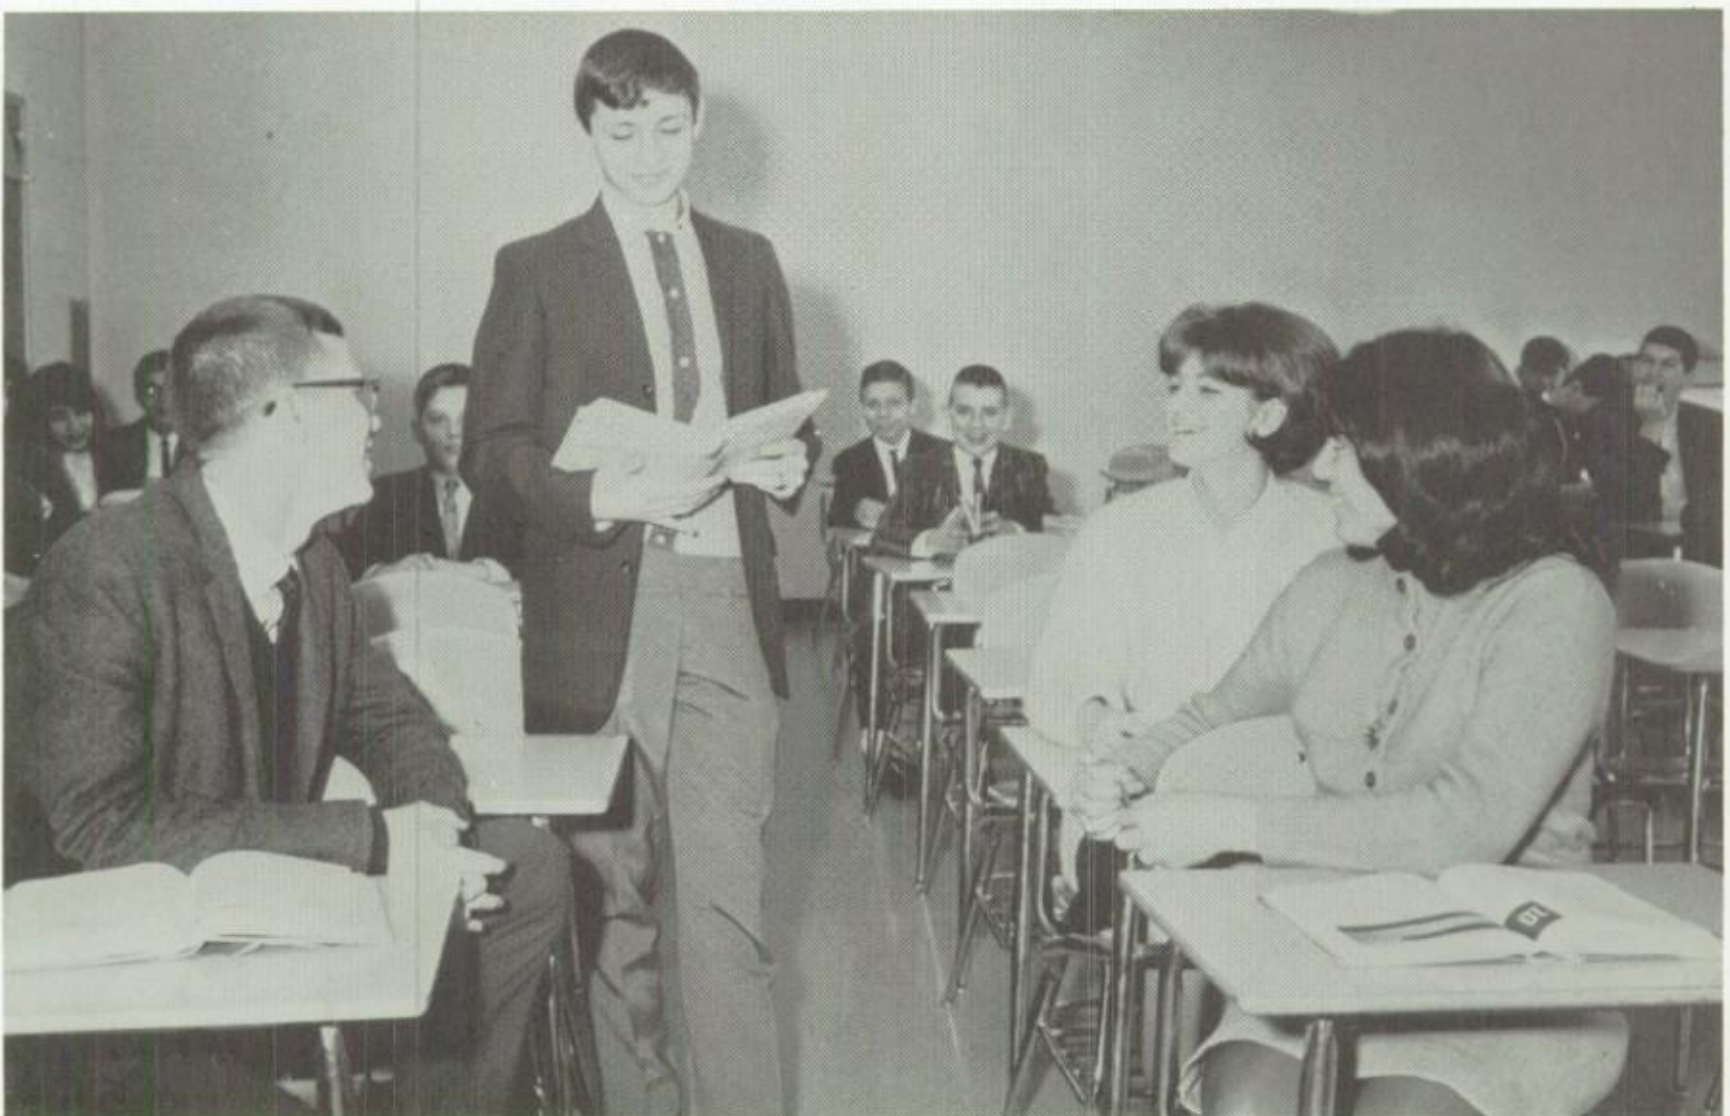

Languages

"Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the tongue." This advice from Shakespeare applies to our language classes. Not only the mechanics of grammar and pronunciation are taught, but emphasis is placed upon conversing.

Pierre's French translation amuses Denny George, Jean Cuneo, and Carol DeMarco.

Sciences

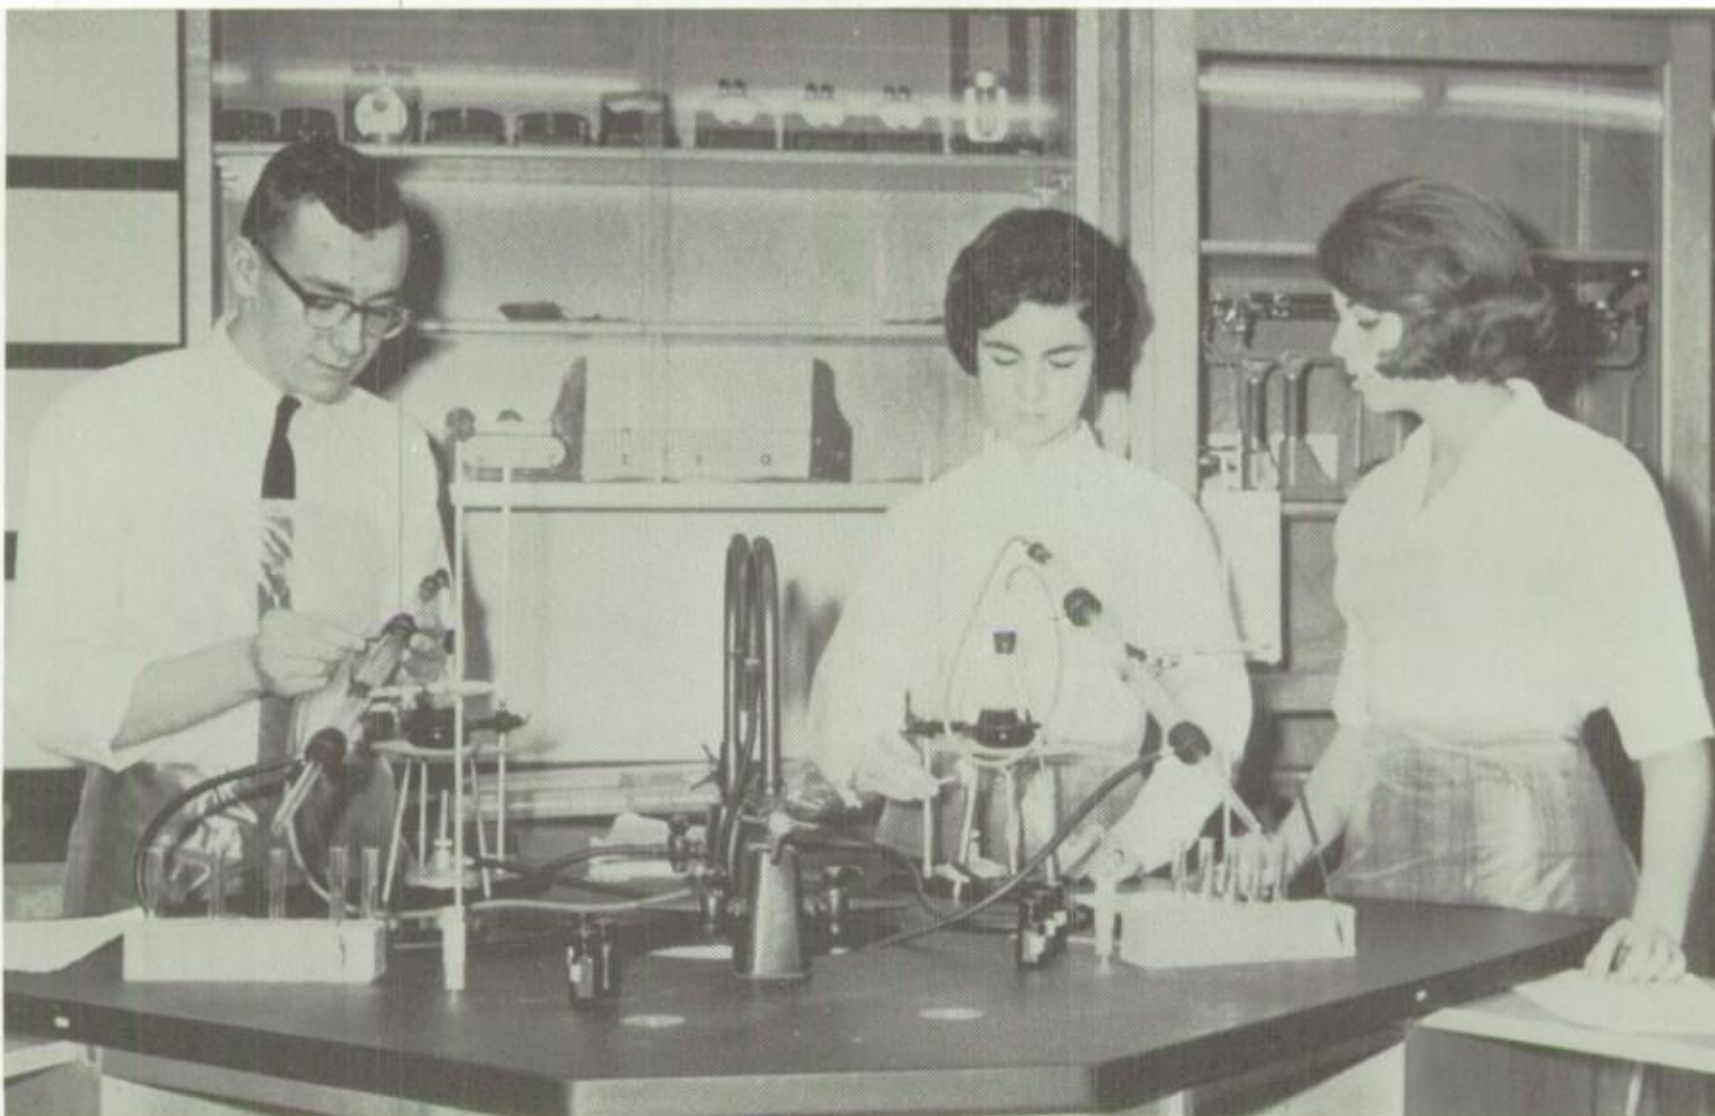

The age of science is upon us. In meeting the technical and academic demands of this highly critical period, students have gained many strides. They have accustomed themselves to look at the improbable as common place. These new discoveries and greater advances challenge the students all year.

Patricia Farrell and John Reilly examine quality. Is it quartz or diamond? Carol Bobyaok and Thomas Herman seek diamonds.

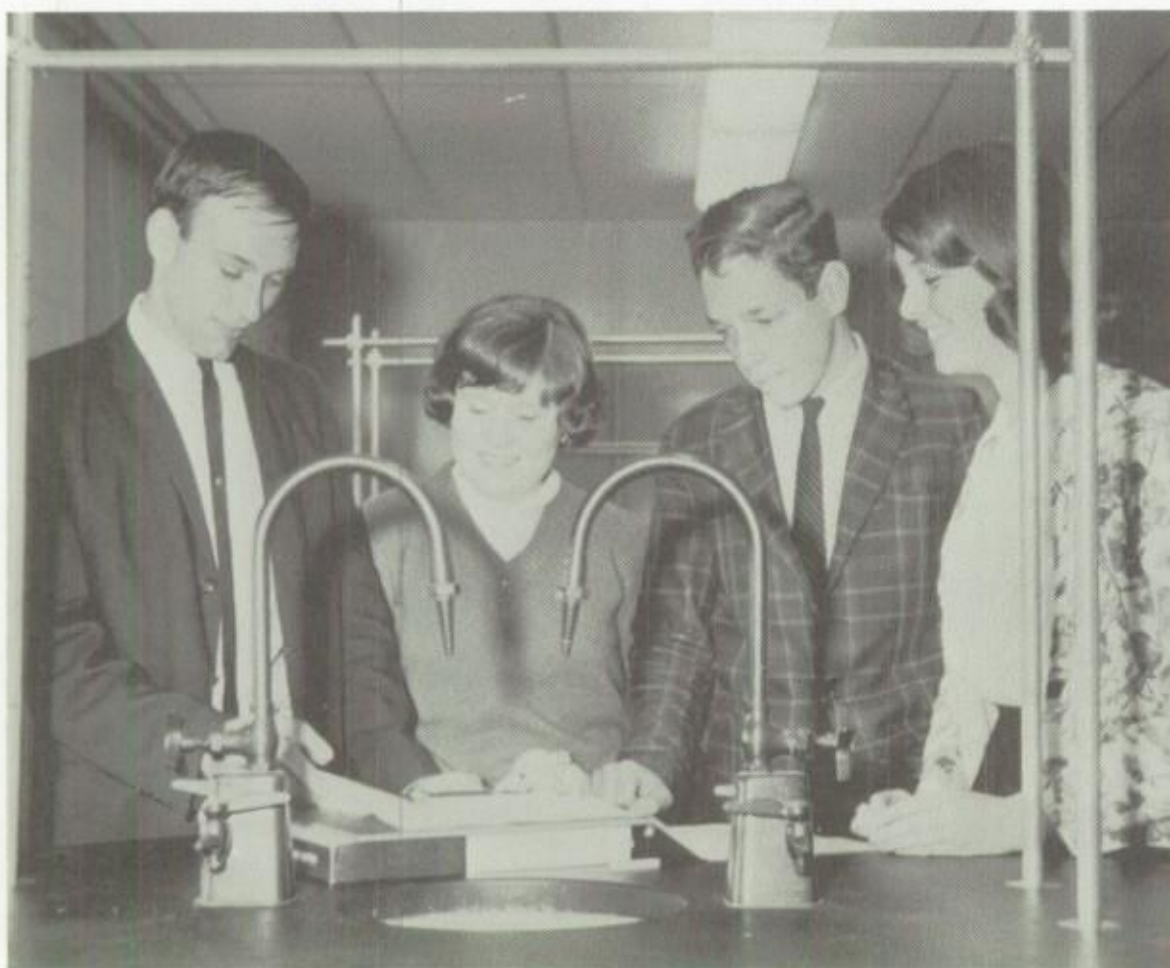

Mary Doerfler and Pam Martin prepare two culture media. John DeLeon and Joseph Hrezo are set to inoculate.

James Cartwright, Dolores Zipnock, John Rulli, and Kathy Shal distill water for use in the lab.

A World of Wonder

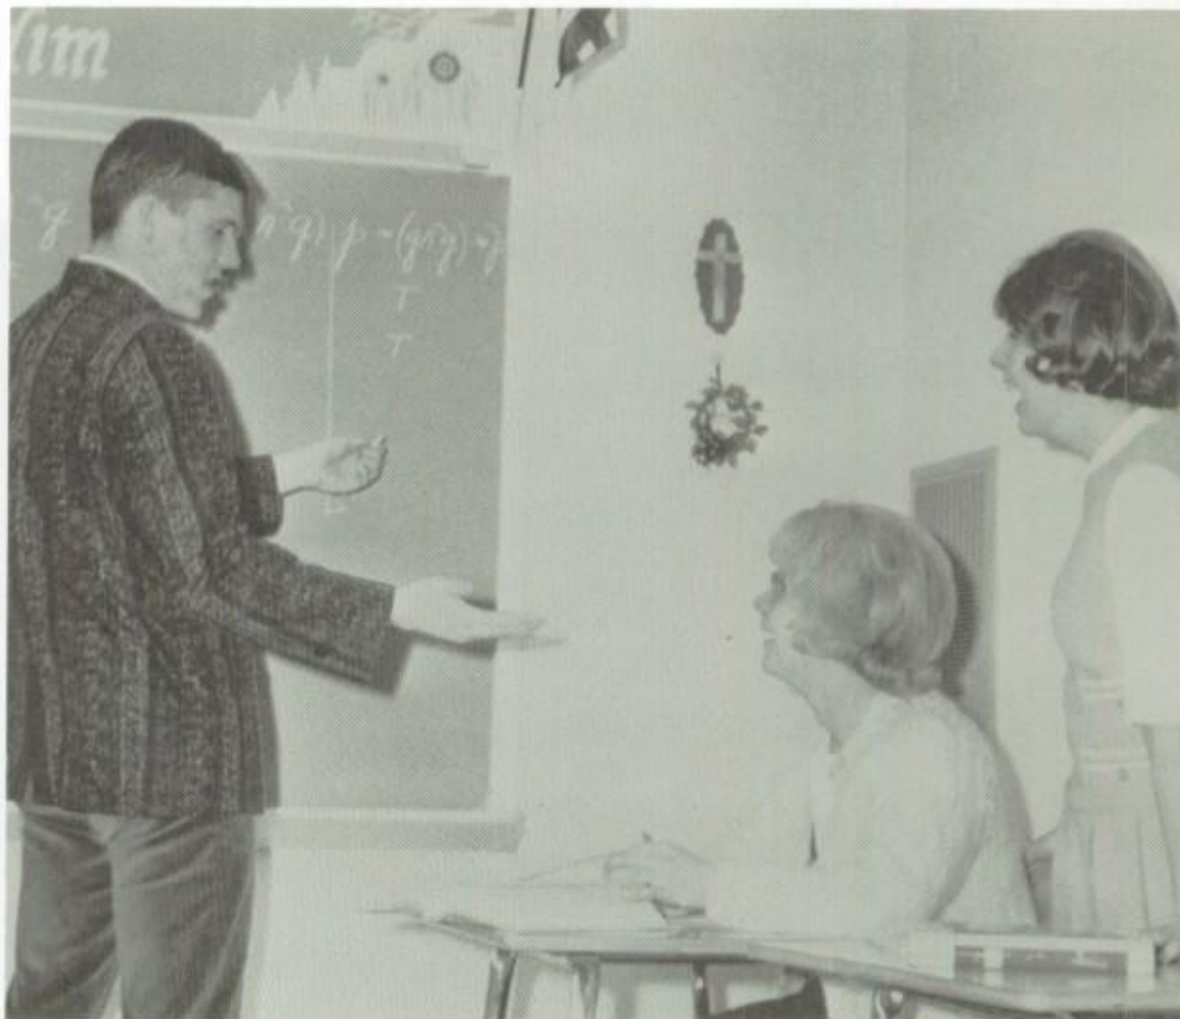

"That's the way the particle reflects," says Howard Barnhart. Mary Rita Lizza and Kathy Waller agree—Blaine Reed looks dubious. "The word is refracts," isn't it?

Mathematics

Geometry appeals even to the squares. Senior Math is a myth which the industrious eventually come to understand. Each student would appreciate someone's finding what 'x' equals once and for all.

Mathematics is a study in discipline. It is a challenge to find a solution whether it be a simple reference to the great Pythagoras, or an application of truth values. Each problem has some kind of answer.

Steve Kerrigan's persuasiveness fails to convince Roberta Connors and Carol Sefcheck, the mathematical logicians of the class.

Nancy Mongelluzzo and Danny D'Amico get a welcome assist from Thomas Garrity, the school's Mathematics wizard

Joe Herchko and Christine Bailor construct perfect figures for the geometry class.

Budding future artists try a new media to produce a piece of beauty.

Art—Self Expression

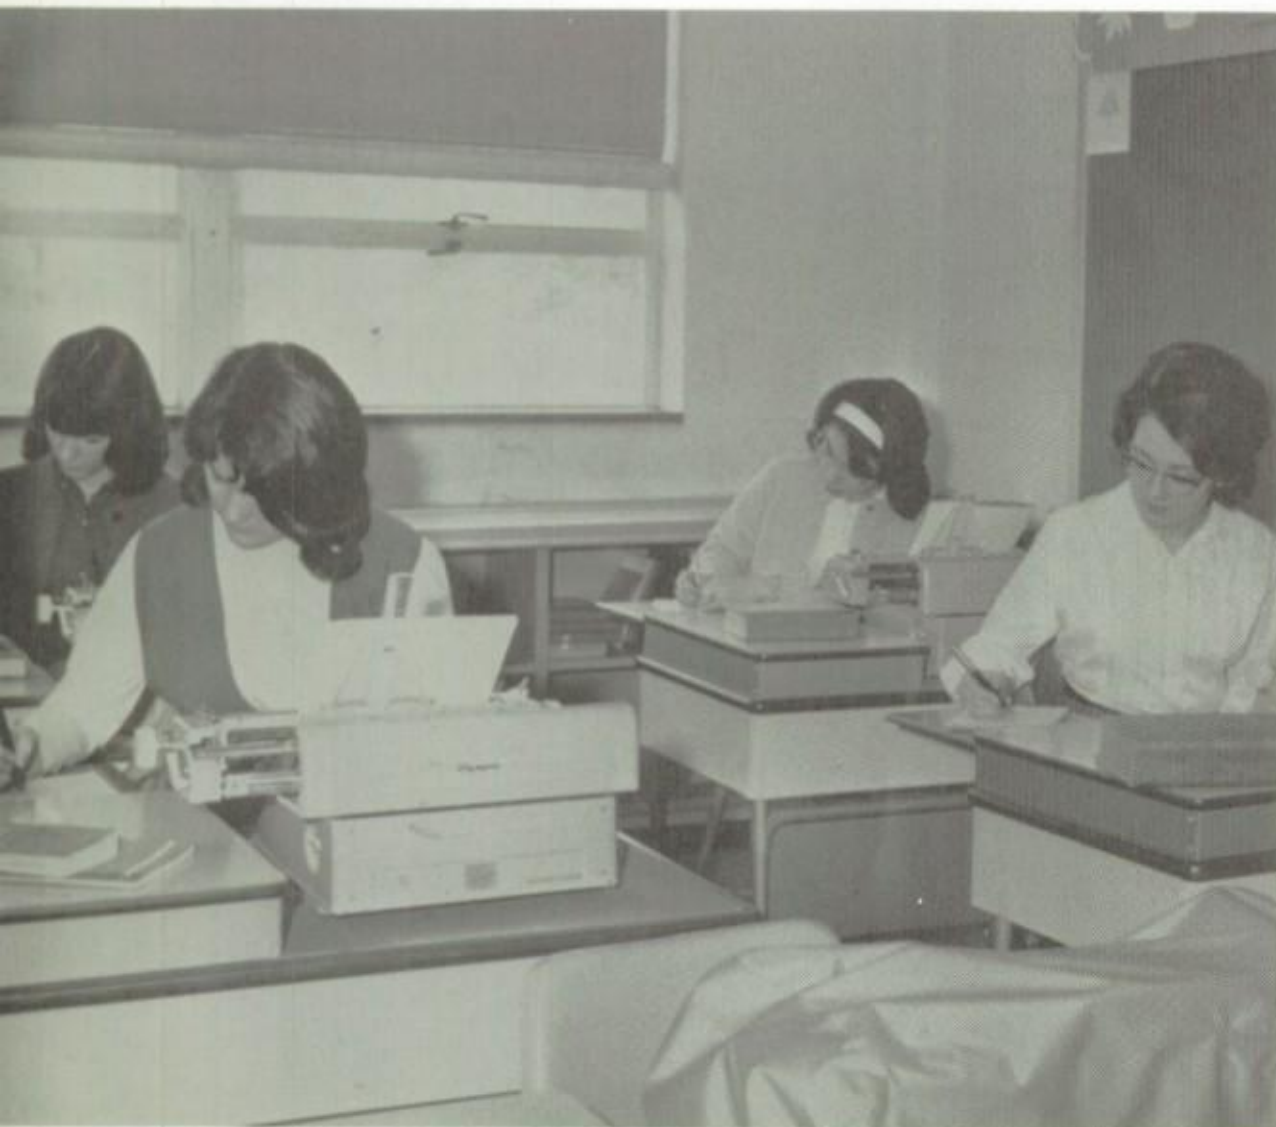

Patty Weltz accepts Raymond Kurka's suggestion to improve her almost completed product. Mr. Davin watches approvingly.

A picture is worth far more than any number of words. All art students agree as they admire their work. It is a pleasure to hear one or another of them discuss the media used in his particular piece of work.

Business Education

Modern speed in everything.

To perform rapidly and skillfully makes the difference. Fingers lightly touch the keys and neatly finished products result. Shorthand, typing, bookkeeping, acquaints the student with business practices. Dictation presents no fears for the students as they unravel the mysteries of strange symbols.

Lovely secretaries,—Rosemarie Vinoski, Mary Louise Cross, Anne Greyno, and Carol D'Amico, busily engaged at work.

Patty Zgorecki reaches top score again. Karen Tully, David Hatter, and Mary Lou Gaudiello rejoice with her.

Future seamstresses, Judy Reed, Mary Katherine Habit, Mary Ann Ciamaco,—each works diligently to complete one more dress for her personal wardrobe. Bernadette Rocheck patiently waits her turn at the machine.

Home Economics

Courses encourage active roles in domestic and social affairs.

"Toward New Horizons" is the aim. It teaches young women to dress appropriately and to eat properly. It stresses important skills in sewing, cooking, and purchasing.

Learning to live better today assures better standards of Christian Living tomorrow. Homemaking is more than housekeeping—it is keeping hearts happy.

Attractive dieticians Barbara Relich, Jackie Hoppe, Myrna Heffner, and Kathy Jobes enjoy working together.

Physical Education

Physical Education provides an opportunity to learn good sportsmanship and fair play. Calisthenics before gym classes help to tune up muscles and spark greater agility. Physical Education is an essential ingredient in our schedule.

Health classes were spent in learning to give first aid. Victims were plentiful. Under the direction of a capable instructor, arms and legs were bandaged, splints applied, and faint students revived.

Pushups keep the boys in trim. James Ganlon, Richard O'Hanlon, Edward Zgorecki, Richard Hermon, manage an average of 50.

Girl's gym class—precision and conditioning

Barbara Relich and Roberta Connors apply first aid to a very patient victim, Ruth Ann Daugherty.

Varsity

Sportive talent and fighting spirit distinguished the Varsity team. Their record shows 15 victories, and 6 losses against very rugged competition. They placed second among the teams in section C. Under the guidance of Mr. Misiak, speed, power, and clever tactics were used to keep the team out front. A loss to St. John's prevented their winning the diocesan championship.

HENRY COUGHENOUR

Vivacious . . . fun-loving . . . interested and sociable . . . enjoyed life and desired to live many years . . . met with a fatal accident . . . Wednesday, May 30, 1962 . . . despite many prayers for his recovery, he died the following afternoon at three . . . his parents . . . brother, sisters, . . . grandparents were heartbroken . . . classmates stunned . . . tear-filled eyes . . . sorrowful hearts . . . deep mourning . . . part of the joy which was our class, was gone . . . forever . . . Three years later . . . graduation day . . . we recall his memory . . . we find consolation in understanding that he has reached his goal . . . intercedes for us in heaven . . . represents our class in God's presence.

O God, the light of faithful souls, listen to our petitions, and grant Henry a place of cool repose, the blessedness of quiet, and the brightness of light; through the merits of our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

Graduation

Four long years of work is rewarded. We reached another milestone. Our spirits are comingled with joy and sorrow. It is a time of rejoicing as well as a time for separation. Now each of us is alone to face the demands of our modern world.
